Dear President,
Sorry for my bad English.

You should stop causing wars all over the world. And also to fund all the groups who, instead of working, they just want to seize power. This is not democracy. This is arrogance.

Your State has a huge public debt, much higher than that officially declared by your offices. You have now a currency that is not worth anything because it was given in a quite disproportionate amount compared to the values that it should be represented.

We have intervened several times (confidentially) to avoid the worst but we cannot carry on doing. Now is the time to tell the truth to your people and to the world. It is time to move from appearance to reality. On your real social situation, starting from unemployment. On your civil situation, starting from the innocent death row inmates. On your political situation, starting with the way in which the nominations are decided. On your economic situation, starting with the relationship between production and speculation of all kinds. On your moral situation, starting from the false respectability of most of your people. On your religious situation, starting with your own contradictions by scientific evidence. On your freedom, starting with the relationship between freedom of few and social injustice of many.

The truth about your country, which is quite different from what they say and write your media. On your own history, your present and on likely forecast for your future. On many secrets concerning your science experiments on earth, seas and skies. Including their costs, both in economic terms, both in terms of disasters and human lives.

Tell the truth to your people and to the world, Barak Hussein. Say the truth as long as you can still. Now is the time. To exit from the chaos, and come back on the brink of chaos. This is what explains the physics and the epistemology of complexity.

Enough finance finalized to itself! Enough legal tender without any real value! Enough illusions, then more disappointed! Enough the law of the jungle made seem as civilization!

Now, stop. And, because neither your people, nor other peoples of the planet, tell this to you, I do, as a simple human being who has understood.

Think about it. And do what you must. You can, and then you have to do it. Immediately. And do it with love. For your family, your people, for all the peoples of the Earth and for you too. It will be better for everyone.

Sincerely.

Rodolfo Marusi Guareschi
